A highly motivated aspirant currently pursuing Bachelor of Science in Accountancy. My family and studies are all link to businesses, which provided me basic understanding about financial literature and communication. Being active and sociable helped me communicate very well with different people, specially because I knew a thing or two about Philosophy and Psychology which gave me the ability to understand people, manage, and respect their emotions. This laid the foundation for developing strong customer service and teamwork skills, with these fraction of skills of mine I aim to use these as a leverage for my physical and mental growth and further contribute to the society using my knowledge and ability starting this moment.
